

The new Administration comes in. When that time comes, the nomination will not be renewed.

Frank B. Kellogg, chief trust buster under the present Administration, is in Washington, and it is understood he will make no further moves of importance in the big cases he has on hand until after March 4, when he will be able to learn the attitude of the new Executive, and particularly of the new Attorney General, who it is now accepted, will be George W.ickersham, of New York.

The relation of Mr. Kellogg to the new regime is understood to be very certain. He is in chief control of the two great trust-busting cases, one begun in the circuit court at St. Louis aiming to dissolve the Standard Oil Company; the other in the circuit court at Salt Lake City aiming to dissolve the Hartman railroad merger by splitting apart the important systems which comprise it, especially the Union and Southern Pacific.

These cases have been pending about two years, and much testimony has been taken in both. It is certain that if they continue to be pressed they will both ultimately reach the Supreme Court.

Because of their status and of their tremendous importance, very manifestation of Taft's attitude toward them will be watched with the utmost concern by business and political interests.

BONI AGAIN TRIES TO GET CHILDREN

Appeals From Court Decision, Which Gave Them Into Care of Mother.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Count Boni de Castellane made one last effort today to regain the custody of his three sons, by appealing from the decision of the court of assizes, handed down, December 17, which gave the mother, who is now the Princess de Sagan, custody of the children.

The general opinion is that the count is trying to force the de Sagan to make a private settlement.

CASE OF SMALLPOX DISCOVERED TODAY

George W. Kiehm, twenty-nine years old, of 302 Georgia avenue southeast, walked into the health department this morning and asked that he be sent to a hospital. Upon investigation it was discovered that the man was suffering from a pronounced case of smallpox.

He was immediately sent to the isolating room in the district building, which is reserved for such cases and later removed to the smallpox hospital.

Kiehm, who has been absent from the city three weeks, arrived last night from Johnsonburg, Pa., and apparently did not know the nature of the disease from which he was suffering. There are at present three cases of smallpox in the district.

TWO SEEK DAMAGES FOR BEING INJURED

Two street railway accidents have been made the basis of suits filed by Randolph T. Warwick and John G. Bielek for damages arising from personal injuries.

Mr. Warwick names the Washington Railway and Electric Company, and through Attorney Leon Tobin, says that on February 24, 1908, he was struck by a car while driving his automobile near Sixteenth and H streets northwest, sustaining permanent and painful injuries. The suit against the Capital Traction Company, brought by John G. Bielek, through Attorney Campbell Carrington, asks $10,000 damages.

AUTO SPEEDERS FORFEIT BONDS

Charged with exceeding the speed limit for automobiles, Emory Kunder and William Perham forfeited $10, and William R. Rose and William Stephenson $5 collateral, in the Police Court this morning.

The men were arrested yesterday in the vicinity of Fourteenth and U streets by Bicycle Policemen Sweeney and Collins.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

TRENTON, Feb. 18.—Edward McManus, formerly a deputy keeper at the State prison, died at his home here today as the direct result of injuries received two years ago, when he stopped a horse fight between two convicts in the prison, one of the convicts being insane. McManus' injuries kept him confined to his home for some time, but he finally returned to duty. He remained for six months, when he was obliged to give up.

PAYS FOR HURRY

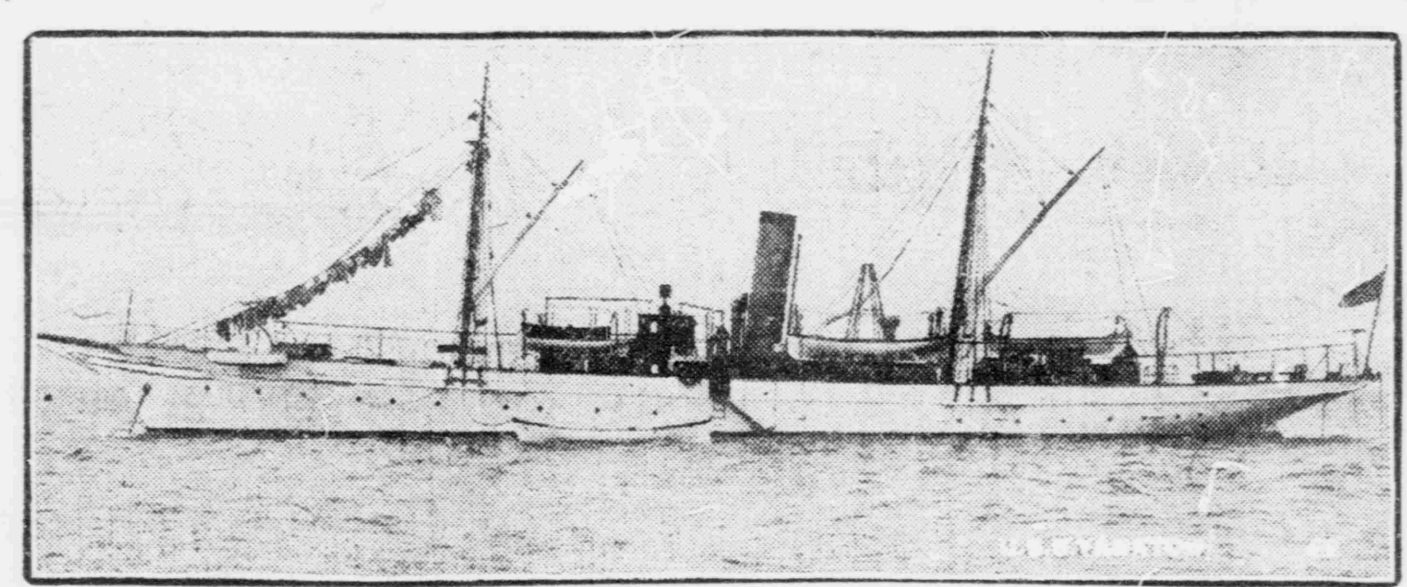

Edward J. Dean, a taxicab driver, was fined $30 in Police Court this morning for violation of the speed limit. Dean was arrested by Policemen Collins and Pennsylvania avenue going at the rate of sixteen miles an hour.

STRIKERS GET AID OF LAW IN FIGHT

Taxicab Company Manager Charged With Operating Unlicensed Cabs.

With the law as an ally, the striking taxicab drivers are confident they will win over the Terminal Taxicab Company, from whose employ they resigned because of their grievance against the new wage scale.

Jeremiah Pickling, general manager of the company, has been summoned to court to answer a charge of operating cabs without license.

The vehicles in question are not taxicabs, but the old-style cabs, which were pressed into service to take the place of those deserted by the men.

The walk-out, which was, at the outset, because of the formal and almost decorous manner in which it was inaugurated, has become a "model strike" by the evident intention of the drivers to take advantage of every legal resource before resorting to any other method of bringing the company to terms.

Men Fighting Fair

Without making any official statements, the leaders have made clear that it is their intention to simply await developments, meeting every move of the company by whatever legal expedient they or their counsel deem proper.

On the part of the company there is no strike. While the dissatisfied drivers are holding out for a return to the free gasoline, in place of the new scale, of 20 per cent of collections, with the possibility of paying 40 to 50 cents a day for their gasoline, the company is contentedly denying that there is a strike.

The chauffeurs have simply resigned, said Mr. Pickling today. "We are filling their places as rapidly as we can. In a day or two our business will be running as smoothly as ever."

Half in Operation

In the meantime, Mr. Pickling acknowledges only one-half of the regular equipment of taxicabs is in commission. Part of the traffic is taken care of by liveries. These teams were evidently hired from Ernest Burgdorf, who is in the livery business on H street.

Burgdorf and Pickling are defendants in a total of twenty-nine cases charging operation of unlicensed hacks. Thirteen of the cases are against Pickling and sixteen against Burgdorf.

The charges are made by Inspector Dawson and Policemen Wheelock, and are an outcome of a test case against Arthur L. Cline, manager of the taxicabs at the New Willard Hotel. Those against Pickling will probably come up in Police Court tomorrow, and those against Burgdorf Thursday.

In defense of their course, Pickling and Burgdorf maintain that the facts and the cases and that of Cline being identical, they have been justified in utilizing the services of the hacks which the authorities declare were unlicensed pending the disposition of the Cline affair.

Decline Information

In order that the prosecuting attorney might appeal the case against Cline, Judge Kimball today ordered the information filed against him quashed. Assistant corporation Counsel Pough stated this morning that the licenses under which Pickling and Burgdorf were operating—one for a garage and the other for a livery stable—were not sufficient to cover the hack and cab lines.

While the controversy between the drivers and the management of the company is awaiting settlement, in the vicinity of the Union Station there is presented the spectacle of the largest road most modern railroad terminal in the world with the ancient cab horse as part of its equipment.

This condition, it is expected by the company, will be changed in a few days after candidates for the drivers' places will have met the legal qualifications necessary to receive a license, even examination of the applicants will take place tonight.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR PATTEE FIRM

Placing the liabilities of the John G. Pattee Company, 1231 G street northwest at $20,000 and its assets at $9,000, New York creditors of that establishment today filed a petition that they be adjudged bankrupt. Upon concurrence of the regular price. When it has accomplished its selling mission, and is put on the market for actual service at a reduced price, the Sample shoe then becomes doubly valuable. And lucky is the lady who finds a pair.

"A Sample Shoe," said the Amiable Drummer, "is several degrees better than its associates, because it is selected as such from a long line to sell the rest. IF IT'S WORK FOR A WANT AD—LET A WANT AD DO IT!

For most of your life you have been trying to do a want ad's work—instead of letting the want ad do it.

You have been doing, or trying to do, at much expense of time, money, and nerves, things which the want ads do easily, readily, quickly.

Perhaps you tried to sell property—to rent it—to find work or workers—to obtain some particular thing—trying to do things which the want ads are in business to do.

You have "adopted" the telephone, the phonograph, the other aids to pleasure and convenience in modern life—SO WHY NOT "ADOPT" THE WANT AD, and make it do the part of the day's work, which is "WANT AD WORK?"

YANKTON AT ANCHOR AT THE NAVY YARD

Tender Looks As Though It Had Made Trip Down the River.

The Yankton, tender of the battleship fleet, as port and trim as the day she steamed with her big sisters out of Hampton Roads for the historic girdle of the globe, reached the Washington navy yard this afternoon. The trim little craft, with colors flying, swung into her berth to the accompaniment of cheers from the hundreds that came down to the docks to give her a welcome home.

The Yankton was the first glimpse of the battleship fleet that has been had here since it left American waters. Through her the Navy Department gained the first wireless communication with Admiral Sperry, the Yankton relaying messages back and forth until the flagship came within reaching distance of the American coast.

In spite of her stormy voyage around the earth, the Yankton looks as if she had just returned from a few hours' cruise down the river.

The Yankton came to Washington in response to a wireless summons from the Navy Department. The mission of the ship is to convey officials and distinguished guests down to Hampton Roads next Monday to witness the incoming of the big fleet.

Poked All Over World. Since leaving Hampton Roads more than a year ago the Yankton has been through almost every experience a ship might encounter. Her courage and persistency never gave out, however, and her trim little nose poked into every corner of the world that was touched by the great battleships.

The Yankton is of only 55 tons displacement while the Connecticut and her class are of 18,000, yet the Yankton went right along, riding through great storms and facing the danger of being lost at sea many times.

Once during a terrific gale going into Yokohama the Yankton was three days overdue, and it was thought she had been lost. The little tender had been sent ahead of the fleet, which was also delayed by the storm, but when the battleships pulled in, there was the saucy little Yankton right "alongside."

The tender has been the messenger boy of the fleet since its departure from home waters and was sent into Mesina when that city was laid waste by the earthquake. Her officers are pretty well worn out and are heartily glad of an opportunity to rest.

Yonan Has Many Experiences During Years Among Wild Kurds

Graduate of Rush Medical College Tells of His Novel Experiences—Once Was Beaten by an Angry Mob.

Strange as a tale of adventure told in some Eastern market place and as dramatic as the history of a martyr is the story told by Dr. Jesse M. Yonan, recently arrived in Chicago, after spending eleven years as a medical missionary among the people of Persia.

There is in the land that was once a portion of ancient Assyria, shut in between the Tigris and the W. I. mountains of Asia Minor, the Kurds today are as foreign to the mellowing influences of civilization as they were hundreds of years ago. Isolated by their faith in Islam and of nomadic ancestry, they are for the most part raised of fanatics, ready to butcher the Christian who ventures within their gates, and living by plundering merchant caravans.

To this land of more than a million inhabitants Dr. Yonan went following his graduation from Rush Medical College in 1898.

Arouses Interest. "With a train of twelve mules bearing my medicine chests and surgical apparatus I approached the chief city of Senneh," said Dr. Yonan, in relating his adventures today. "Instantly the police and the crowd came forth to meet me, demanding why I had come. I made reply that I was a physician and was come to cure all manner of diseases. That interested them, for they thought I was a magician and at a touch might cure sickness."

"At once the governor, hearing of my arrival, sent servants to question me. The following day he sent an escort for me, and I was brought to his palace, where I was astounded to find him a graduate of Oxford, thoroughly conversant with American affairs, even to the political campaign of 1896, and knowing the standing of our schools and colleges."

"He examined my diploma and finding it satisfactory, introduced me to the chiefs who had assembled. He then gave me free entrance to all dwellings and provided for my support by taxing each of the chiefs a certain sum."

Sanitary Conditions. "The city is very ancient; some of the mud walls have stood for nearly a thousand years and are in the worst sanitary condition possible. The only water the people have for drinking or cooking comes from a gutter that passes through every courtyard and is used by all alike for washing clothes and baking. As a consequence the most terrible scourges of cholera and typhoid are common."

"The people are all Mohammedans, and it is worth the life of anyone to speak against their religion. Their religion and mode of life are so bound up in each other that it is only by the utmost diplomacy that more sanitary customs be introduced. For instance, it is their superstition that a baby will die if it is washed before becoming a year old."

"Once I was called to the household of a chief to cure a child who was suffering from cholera. I was told that the child was dying, and I was to be blamed for it."

of a chief to wipe out a plague of typhoid. Examining the source of the water supply I found a pool in the courtyard where camels, donkeys, and servants alike drank and bathed. I re-monstrated, but the chief declared that the pool was of the size prescribed by the prophet and so could not be condemned."

Tube Test Convinced. "In order to convince him that the water must be boiled, I placed three drops in a test tube of sterilized water, and in another tube three drops of boiled water, telling him that in three days the first would be full of 'insects.' He scoffed, but when it was as I said after three days he was thunderstruck, and was willing to order the water boiled before using."

"Once I was near death as a result of the hatred the common people bear to Christians. Going to the house of a patient one day in one of the smaller cities, a man met me in the street and said to me: 'Do you cure Mohammeds?' Before I could answer he raised the cry 'Ya Ali,' which is the signal for a mob to gather."

"At once people came running from all directions, infuriated with the cry. They seized firewood and beat me almost to unconsciousness, never dragging me to the house of a priest near by. As we came in at the gate, he met us, and without giving me time to deny the accusation he then proceeded with the beating."

Near to Death. "This they did, until my left arm was broken and I fell to the ground. Then he dragged me to the steps in order to deliberate the method of my death. I was propped there gazing into the courtyard filled with hundreds of menacing faces and the roofs packed with spectators crying out for my execution and shaking disks and flutes at me."

"No protestations that I could make were heeded. Suddenly a company of soldiers sent by the governor of the city burst into the courtyard and dispersed the mob. The true irony of the situation came when a few weeks later the son of that priest fell ill of diphtheria and I was called to cure him. The boy recovered, but the priest never referred to his cruel treatment of me, although today he is a close friend."

Through the efforts of Dr. Yonan a Persian guild has been formed among pastors of various denominations to raise funds for a hospital to be located at Kirmanshah. A sum of $10,000 is required to erect a building, which in America would cost $20,000. It will be the only institution of a medical nature in the entire province where Dr. Yonan is the only physician.—Chicago Post.
